

Notes on Contributors

Katrin Auel is Head of the Research Group ‘European Governance, Public Finance and Labour Markets’ at the Institute for Advanced Studies in Vienna, Austria. Her research focuses on Europeanisation, the democratic legitimacy of governance in multilevel systems and, in particular, legislative studies with a specific interest in the role of national parliaments in the EU and parliamentary communication. Recent publications have appeared in Journal of Contemporary European Studies, Journal of Elections, Public Opinion and Parties, and Politics & Governance.

Claudia Badulescu is a PhD Researcher in Political Science at the European University Institute in Florence. Her research focuses on the Europeanisation of post-communist public administrations in Central and Eastern Europe and the Western Balkans. Her recent publications relate to the politics of differentiated integration (DI) in the EU, with a focus on the salience of DI and governmental positions vis-à-vis DI. Claudia is also the author of the forthcoming ‘Freedom House - Nations in Transit Country Report’ on the state of democracy in Romania in 2021.

Marco Brunazzo is Professor of Political Science at the Department of Sociology and Social Research at the University of Trento (Italy). His main areas of interest are the EU differentiated integration theory, the role of Italy in the EU, and participatory democracy. His most recent books are La politica dell’Unione europea (Milano, 2020) and Italy in the EU: A Rollercoaster Journey (New York, 2020).

Maja Bučar is a Professor of International Relations at the Chair of International Relations, Faculty of Social Sciences (University of Ljubljana, Slovenia). Her main areas of interests are: EU integration, Development Studies, R&D&I activities in the European Union. During her career she (co)authored more than 25 scientific articles and 8 books.

Frederico Ferreira da Silva (PhD European University Institute, 2019) is a Senior SNSF Researcher at the University of Lausanne, Switzerland. His research focuses on elections, voting behaviour, and voting advice applications.

Mathew Doidge is a Senior Research Fellow and Lecturer in the National Centre for Research on Europe (NCRE) at the University of Canterbury (New Zealand). His main research interests include the development policy of the European Union, EU–Asia relations, interregionalism, and security and development in the Pacific.

Eva Hanada (née Banincova) is an Associate Professor at the Institute for Promoting International Partnerships at Kobe University (Japan). Her main areas of interest are financial integration in the EU, European financial regulation and supervision, and the economies of the new EU Member states. Her recent work includes contributions and chapters in the following books in Japanese: Understanding the EU Politics (Minerva Shobo, 2020) and The EU in Turmoil (Keiso Shobo, 2018).

Saila Heinikoski works as a Senior Research Fellow in the European Union Research Programme at the Finnish Institute of International Affairs. Her main areas of interests are European integration, political discourses, border management and free movement policies of the European Union. Her most recent books are The History and Politics of Free Movement within the European Union: European Borders of Justice

(Bloomsbury, 2020) and Demilitarization and International Law in Context: The Åland Islands (Routledge, 2018), co-authored with Sia Spiliopoulou Åkermark and Pirjo Kleemola-Juntunen.

Stefan Telle is a research assistant at the European University Institute. In the framework of the Horizon 2020 project 'InDivEU', Stefan studies what governments think about differentiated integration. His main research interests are in European integration theory, territorial cohesion, and cross-border cooperation. He has published papers in Regional & Federal Studies and the European Journal of Spatial Development.

Boštjan Udovič is an Associate Professor in Diplomacy at the Chair of International Relations Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia. His main interests are linked to Diplomatic Studies, and International Political Economy. In 2021 he published a (co)authored book Diplomacy in the 21st century: basics, challenges, and views.