

Editor's note

Welcome to the latest issue of the Australian and New Zealand Journal of European Studies. This issue is again a demonstration of the variety of academic interests and disciplines that characterise European Studies in our region. Here we include: an examination of the legal and political frameworks shaping the digitisation of bordering in Australia and the European Union; an exploration of the impact of the European Union Deforestation Regulation on the New Zealand forestry sector; and a consideration of Kosovo's perspectives on, and challenges to, integration into the European Union.

Student policy briefs

In this issue we also continue to present student work from our region. This selection of non-peer reviewed policy briefs are the work of students at the University of Melbourne's Faculty of Education. These students participated in a European study tour as part of the multi-disciplinary post-graduate course Education Policy in Practice: European Education Policy and National Systems, supported by the Erasmus+ Programme of the European Union (620061-EPP-1-2020-1-AU-EPPJMO-MODULE). The policy briefs stem from the learning experiences of the students during their study tour, reflecting on the issues and challenges confronting the education sector in those countries visited.