EDITORIAL

The first issue of Sydney Studies in English was published in 1975, under the editorship of G. A. Wilkes and A. P. Riemer, and with the assistance of the English Association. It is a publication which appears annually, devoted to criticism and scholarship in English literature and drama, with the aim also of strengthening the relationship between the University and the study of English at the senior secondary level.

The founding editors have now handed over to Margaret Harris and Jennifer Gribble. Much of the co-ordination of this issue has been done by David Kelly. We pay tribute to the initiative that established this journal and maintained it through its first twenty-two years. We affirm our commitment to its future as a forum for the discussion and review of English studies.
