

Notes on Contributors

Alexandra Dunwill holds an MA degree from the University of Warsaw, Poland, a Diploma of Education, a Master of Educational Studies from Monash University and a Graduate Diploma in Librarianship from the University of Melbourne. She has recently completed her PhD studies at the Education faculty at Monash.

For her second Master's thesis, she examined topics such as globalisation and internationalisation of the educational context in Australia, including the policy context of Australian schooling, trends in educational policy, and economic factors influencing government policies. For her PhD thesis she investigated the reconfiguration of Polish elites and the role that education plays in this process. Her current research interests include social, cultural and economic aspects of globalisation, transnationalism, and educational policy reforms in Australia and Europe.

Julian Grimm is currently undertaking his PhD at the University of Sydney on "Building an EU identity? Policy development at the EU-level to strengthen citizens' self-identification in terms of EU citizenship and belonging." Julian has a strategy consulting background, having worked for international management consulting firms and financial institutions and is interested in the intersections of business, economics and politics.

Pablo Jimenez is a visiting Fellow at the ANU Centre for European Studies, where he is involved in the EU Migration and Integration, and the Implementing Climate Policy research groups. His previous publications deal with European identity, EU political unity, EU citizenship, and secularism and religion in Europe. He has recently written chapters to appear in forthcoming books on migration, integration and citizenship; disability rights: personalism and the family; EU climate policy implementation; and competition policy in EU trade agreements. Pablo is also an Adjunct Lecturer at the University of Notre Dame Australia and works at the Department of Education, Skills and Employment in the Australian Government.

Binoy Kampmark was a Commonwealth Scholar at Selwyn College, Cambridge and is Senior Lecturer in the School of Global, Urban and Social Studies at RMIT University, Melbourne. He is a contributing editor for CounterPunch and columnist for The Mandarin.

Alexandra Ludewig is a professor and Head of the School of Humanities at The University of Western Australia. She is a scholar of German and European Studies. Her teaching and research focus on issues of identity and 'Heimat' and among her recent publications are the following monographs: Screening Nostalgia. 100 Years of German Heimat Film (Transcript Verlag 2011), Born German. Re-born in Western Australia (UWAP 2016) and War Time on Wadjemup (UWAP 2019).

Nellie Munin (LLD, Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Israel and advocate) is an Associate Professor at the law school, Zefat Academic College, Israel. Formerly she served as Minister of Economic Affairs in the Israeli Mission to the EU and as Chief Legal Advisor of the State Revenue Administration in the Israeli Ministry of Finance.

Ofer Sitbon (Ph.D. in law, Tel Aviv University) is a Senior Lecturer at the law school, Zefat Academic College and Head of the Clinic for Corporations and Society at the College of Law & Business in Ramat Gan. He is also a senior fellow at the Shohat Institute. He is the co-founder and former editor-in-chief of Ma'asei Mishpat - Tel Aviv University Journal of Law and Social Change.

Russell Solomon has a PhD from the University of Sydney and teaches law in the School of Global, Urban and Social Studies at RMIT University, Melbourne Australia. His current research interests include the impact of Brexit, particularly in relation to rights in the United Kingdom, as well as issues around juridification and the protection of rights in the European Union. Other current research areas include anti-discrimination law, bills of rights and the implementation of economic and social rights.