Contents

Editor’s Note ................................................................. ...2

Russell Solomon, Rights and the post-Brexit agenda: rights protection and institutional inadequacy in the United Kingdom Green Deal ................................................................. ...3

Nellie Munin and Ofer Sitbon, Between Normative Power and Soft Power: the Psagot case ................................................................. ...18

Julian Grimm, Building an EU identity: Policy development at the EU-level – An overview of the current state ................................................................. 34

Pablo Cristóbal Jiménez Lobeira, Europe United in Diversity—An Analogical Hermeneutics Perspective ................................................................. ...45

Alexandra Dunwill, European, national or global? Elite schools in post-communist Poland ................................................................. ...59

Alexandra Ludewig, Westlessness? Challenges for the EU’s Soft Power Approach ................................................................. ...73

Binoy Kampmark, COVID Meets Volvo: The Swedish Public Health Approach to Coronavirus ................................................................. ...85

ESAANZ ESSAY PRIZE WINNERS 2020

Oscar Eggleton, The Great Game of the twenty-first century: Can Europe compete? ................................................................. ...99

George Cadillac, The appearance of bias in international investment arbitrators and analysis of potential impediments to bias in the European Union’s proposal for a multilateral investment court ................................................................. ...107

Sareth Kailas Kumaresan, Evaluating the EU as a Global Leader in International Development ................................................................. ...114

Notes on Contributors ................................................................. ...121