About the Sydney Society for Scottish History

The SSSH was founded in 1985 by the late Malcolm Broun OAM QC for the purpose of fostering and celebrating in Australia the history of Scotland and the Scots, particularly focussed on encouraging early-career researchers and building contacts with academics in Scotland.

We do this by:

- promoting and organising a regular lecture series
- publishing an annual peer-reviewed Journal of papers presented to the Society.
- promoting liaison between researchers and academics in Australia and globally working on Scottish history
- supporting other Scottish organisations
- participating in the celebration of Scottish festivals

SSSH welcomes independent and university-based scholars in support of the work of the Society.

SSSH works in collaboration with the Scottish Australian Heritage Council, other Scottish coordinating organisations nationally, and is involved with academic bodies at all levels.

FOUNDING PRESIDENT 1985-2014 – Malcolm Broun OAM QC

Sydney Grammar School is the new venue for meetings of the Sydney Society for Scottish History. Come along and help extend the lively spirit of enquiry created by Malcolm in his Chambers. Meetings commence at 7pm in the "Edmund Barton Room" which holds fond associations with Malcolm, an Old Sydeian, whose Chambers were also of the same name.
